WE DESIRE to call your attention to the fact that we are the agents for the celebrated "Myer's Hay Tools" and invite you to call and examine this track before buying. This is a solid steel track and can be suspended from each rafter, thus making it perfectly secure and making it impossible to sway even an inch. It is a great improvement in Hay Forks and should be seen to be appreciated. We have one put up in our warehouse, and will take pleasure in showing it to all who will favor us with a call. Estimate (put up complete with track, fork, pulleys and rope) cheerfully given.

Darwin on Carlyle.

Carlyle sneered at almost every one. One day in my house he called Grote's "History" "a fetid quagmire, with nothing spiritual in it." I al-ways thought until his "Reminiscenses" appeared that his sneers were partly jokes, but this now seems rather and notes that he has put carefully doubtful. His expression was that of away on the sitting-room table and a depressed, almost despondent, yet benevolent man; and it is notorious back is turned. how heartily he laughed. I believe that his benevolence was real, though stained by not a little jealousy. Among the most practical is that of Dr. Polli of Italy, who obtains complete incineration or calcination by the use of coal gas mixed with atmospheric air, applied to a cylindri-cal retort of refracting clay, so as to consume the gaseous products of com-bustion. This process occupies two hours. In the Siemen's regenerative furnace, which has been approved by several high authorities, only the hot blast is used, the body supplying hydregen and carbon; or a stream of several high authorities, only the hot blast is used, the body supplying hydrogen and carbon; or a stream of heated hydrocarbon mixed with heated hydrocarbon mixed with heated air is sent from a gasometer supplied with coal, charcoal, peat or wood, the brick or iron cased chamber being thus heated to a high degree the town council of Middletown for some time have urged the railroad company to place gates over the crossing where its road intercepts our main street. The council recently appointed a special committee with instructions to again communicate with instructions to again communicate with the superintednet and urge the necessity of the company, placing gates over this crossing, as it did not consider a flagman efficient enough for such a dangerous and unsafe thorough fare. From the number of narrow escapes that so frequently occur the council thought it wise to place this further safe guard before any lives were sacrificed. The committee corresponded with the superintendent of the railroad company without success. Then it referred to the railroad attorney, G. V. Massey, with no better result. It then formulated a bill and with it appealed to our legislative body for protection. The bill passed through the Senate a few days later—it then went into the House of Representatives, passed a reading, thence into the hands of the House gobbling committee, whose special was a presentative and the control of the results in the child to use over four hundred words. MIDDLETOWN, May 16th. This letter appeared in Every Even ing of Tuesday last and expresses the opinion of Middletown people in genercould be expected. In Sussex the vote al. The grade crossing at Main street of six thousand which was predicted is a dangerous one and although a did not reach four thousand. While flagman is employed there the responsibility for any accident which may happen will rest upon the railroad officers. The members of the Legislature who are responsible for the defeat of the bill which required the building of safety gates at the crossing have done the bidding of their masters and once more we see the evil effects of allowing members of the General Assembly to accept passes.

The people of Middletown have asked for the gates in order that their ives and property might not be endangered and were not only refused by the railroad officials, but even by the Legislature. Should the people of Middletown, through their council, order the placing of some obstruction upon the track of the Delaware railroad at intervals of thirty minutes every day in the week some means would be quickly employed by the raiload officials to compel the removal of town. The little remark made by Representative Walton, and quoted in the letter places Mr. Massey in a bad should never again be called upon to represent the people.

Dear Friend:—I received your letter and the papers last Friday, the 24th, and I was very glad indeed to get them, as they were the latest papers received here since April 3d, and I was glad to hear from the United States again. The mails are very irregular here; and you can't tell anything about them, they have to come in the first place one hundred and twentyfive miles by stage from Santa Rosa, the the mines, and then from the mines over here This is a wild, unsettled country, and nearly all are Mexicans on the ranches here, but on this ranch only a few are Mexicans, the others being Americans There are on this ranch at the presen time Messrs. Cheeseman and Otes, Wood Warrick, four American cowboys, one family of Americans who work around the ranch, an American cook, a Mexican cowboy, and two Mexican families. The ranch house is situated in a hollow among the nountains, and you would pass by the gap, going along the plains, and never body wears broad sombrero hats, cartridg elts, and always carry revolvers in th belt. I just wish you could see Tim and I when we are equipped and mounted and ready for a trip across the mountains.

If I should appear in Delaware City in this costume the boys would think Bar num's circus had come to town, sure. My ostume is a large Sombrero, flannel shirt, boots and spurs, buckskin leggings, a cartridge belt with pistol and knife. When I go out horseback, on one side of my saddle is strapped a carbine and lasso, and on the other side a canteen filled with water. If we are going for over night our blankets are tied on behind our saddles. and rifles and camping outfit on the side The principal food we have is goat meat and freolies, (a kind of bean), bread and coffee. They keep large herds of goats here just for their meat, and kill one about every other day. Goat meat is pretty good, only a little tough, and we are glad to get it. There are no roads here, and much of the riding is through briars, cactus and mosquito grass, and one i obliged to wear leggings. We have cots for each man to sleep on, and each owns his own cot and bedding. I have not slept our coats for pillows. I have ridde wishing Mr. and Mrs. Truax many happy

After while I happened to touch his sides with my heels, when I shot across those plains like an express train, the horse leaping over the bushes like a deer. I pulled and hauled but could not stop him. After while I saw in front of me a jungle of prickley pear, cactus and mos-quito bushes. The horse was making straight for it, and I knew that if he reached it I was gone up, sure. So I tried to pull him down, and just happened to get the right pull, stopping him within two feet of the mass of bushes. When I got back to camp they informed me how the orses were used to being managed, and after that I had no further trouble. I was over to the Fronterza Silver mine on Sunday. They are owned by an American company. They are thirty-five miles from her by the regular trail, but by a short cut over the mountains they are about twenty. We went over the mountains, and you can hardly imagine a harder would have sent horse and rider down the side of the mountain. I would not think and no horses but these could possibly get along. Just before getting to the min we passed through a dense pine forest and a lot of charcoal beds, and beyond this came to a peak of the mountains, which was almost straight up and down and about two thousand feet high; it was nestone rock with no growth on it whatever. At the foot of this was the mines. I had met Mr. Noble, the superintendent of the mines on my way out here. We took dinner with him and looked over the works. The shaft is two hundred feet deep ; I thought I would like to go down, but after looking down and seeing a mar lowered in a bucket I changed my mind and did not go.

The mountains here are terribly rough, rocky and steep. I did not imagine that any place could be so rough and rugged. There is a valley about 8 or 10 miles wide on which is most of the range, and when you get off of it it is nothing but climb. The valley is 5,000 feet above the level of the sea, so you can imagine what some of the mountains are at 8,000 and 10,000 feet above sea level. We certainly get pure air here. These are a part of the Rocky Mountains. Cowboys get here from $40 to $50 in Mexican money, a month. Mexican dollars are only worth 75 cts. in United States money, and 1 United States dollar in Mexico is worth $1.33 in Mexican money, at present market. lowered in a bucket I changed my mind in Mexican money, at present market rates. BACK TO ST. LOUIS

THE AWFUL DESTINY OF AN EDITOR WHO WAS REFUSED BY HEAVEN AND THE OTHER PLACE.

So far as we know, there is no where a man with a keener wit or a gentler humor than Joseph B. Mc-Cullagh's. An eighteen years' resi-dence in St. Louis has not dulled this gentleman's wit nor debased his humor. In the profession of journal-ism he is facile princeps, and in all the relations of private social life he ed lustily at the beautiful jasper gate thereof. An old gentleman with a venerable beard came to the gate, and, poking his head through the pickets of the gate, inquired: "Who's

"It is I, answered McCullagh. "Yes, yes, so I see," said the saint,
"but who are you?"
"I am Joseph B. McCullagh of St.
Louis, Mo., editor of the Globe-Democrat," answered McCullagh.

"Well, Joseph, what do you want?" "I want to get in there," responded McCullagh. "Well, you can't get in here, Joseph," said the saint, with a dis-tinct intonation of sympathy. "I'm tinct intonation of sympathy. "I'm sorry for you, but we've got no room for you. You'll have to try the other place." Of course, this made McCullagh feel very badly; it was a good deal of a disappointment to him. But, dea disappointment to him. But, determined not to be left out in the cold, he trudged off downward and presently brought up at the door of—of—well, suppose we call it (as the saint did) "the other place."

"Not so bad as it might be," thought McCullagh, as he knocked lustily at the door. He did not have to knock twice, for instaneously the door opened and the leering face of gration. If, as the report implies the arch fiend himself was thrust inquiringly forth.

"Who's there?" asked the hideous

imp. "It is I," answered McCullagh. "Well, yes, so I should say," quoth the fiend, "but who—pardon my ignorance—who are you?"

"I am Joseph B. McCullagh of St. Louis, Mo., editor of the Globe Democrat," answered McCullagh. " Ah, indeed ?" said Satan. "Well, Joe, what do you want?"

I want to get in there," answered McCullagh.
Satan pulled in his head for a few moments, then thrusting it forth again—"Joe," said he, "I don't find your name down in our books and I see and they would it." can't let you in."

Cullagh. "I've just bear place and they wouldn't have m there; I'm bound to get in here!"

With that, Satan banged the door, and McCullagh was left standing outside, alone, disconsolate, hopeless.

Then the horror of the only alternative presented to the wretched Mc-Cullagh impelled the awful cry that like a volcanic outburst issued from his pallid lips: "Great Casar! have I got to go back to St. Louis?"-Eugene Field in the Chicago News.

If the bright things said in the course of a month by this remarkable man could be gathered together in a volume what a charming book that would be!

The latest capital story told by Mr. McCullagh was at a dinner in St. Louis last week, a dinner given by a number of his intimate friends, to Colonel J. C. The story was at the expense of St. Louis, yet it was so good a one that neither Mr. McCullagh nor any other loyal St. Louisan can seriously object to its repetition.

Mr. McCullagh had been expressing the hope that, spurred by the exception of the household's "private some of the household's "private can". The dough is flattened out nor any other loyal St. Louisan can seriously object to its repetition.

Mr. McCullagh had been expressing the hope that, spurred by the example of her sister cities, St. Louis would gird herself up to actual endeavor. She had been idling too long. Unless reactionary tactics where adopted every citizen would be likely to suffer the experience which Mr. McCullagh had illustrated to him (as he averred) in a dream of singular vividness.

He dreamed that, having died, he made his way to Heaven and knocked lustily at the beautiful jasper gate our attention .- Frank Stiles Wood ruff, in April St. Nicholas. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of 'mothers for their children while teething. The New Orleans Grand Jury There is no appeal from the action of the Grand Jury, and the State of Louisiana will probably do nothing in reparation of the massacre. It remains for the United States to decide whether indemnity of any kind shall be paid. Meanwhile there is one remark of the Grand Jury which will command universal assent. It is that which emphasizes the necessity of our present laws permit an influx of foreigners which paralyzes civilized order, and justifies the shooting of unarmed prisoners in jail, it is high time that such an influx were stopped

The watercress is a plant contains many sanitary qualities. A curious characteristic of it is that, if grown in a ferruginous stream, it absorbs into itself five times the amount of iron that any other plants does.
